LEADERS OF THE USSR SOCIETY OF CHILD DOCTORS:

KISEL' Alexander
(19.03.1859–31.08.1938),
(chairman, 1934–1938, Moscow)

Contributed to the study of clinical manifestations and prophylaxis of tuberculosis, rheumatism, malaria, rickets.

For 24 years was head of the therapeutical department of Moscow Olginskaya Child Hospital; after that was a lecturer and then a professor and the director of the child clinic of Women's Higher Education Institution (now — RNRMU named after N.I. Pirogov).

SPERANSKY Georgy
(19.02.1873–14.01.1969)
(chairman, 1938–1962, Moscow)

One of the founders of Russian neonatology. His research in the field of nutrition and digestive disorders, bronchopulmonary diseases and sepsis had a great significance in fighting infant mortality. He was the director of the State Scientific Institute of Maternity and Infancy Protection (now — Scientific Center of Children's Health), which was founded at his initiative.

DOMBROVSKAYA Yuliya
(11.12.1891–26.12.1976)
(chairman, 1962–1974, Moscow)

Her works on the etiology, clinical manifestations, pathogenesis and treatment of childhood pneumonia were of outstanding significance. For many years she was head of the department of child diseases at the First Moscow Medical Institute (now — 1st MSMU named after I.M. Sechenov).

STUDENIKIN Mitrofan
(02.12.1923–07.07.2013)
(chairman, 1974–1991, Moscow)

His scientific studies were focused on vascular dystonia, neonatology, nutrition of various-aged children, allergic diseases, cystic fibrosis, hepatic and biliary tract, renal, blood disorders, as well as the social aspects of child health protection. For many years he was head of the Scientific Research Institute of Pediatrics of the Academy of Medical Sciences of the USSR (now — Scientific Center of Children's Health).

LEADERS OF THE RUSSIAN SOCIETY OF CHILD DOCTORS:

TUR Alexander
(15.09.1894–24.07.1974)

(chairman, 1959–1974, St. Petersburg)

In the besieged Leningrad he was head of the Leningrad pediatric institute's council on nutrition; together with his students he developed 18 formulas of milk substitutions out of soy, malt and other products. He was the originator of such sections of Russian pediatrics as neonatology, dietetics, pediatric hematology and endocrinology.

BISYARINA Valentina
(24.07.1912–19.08.1997)

(chairman, 1974–1987, Omsk)

An outstanding scientist and clinician, famous public activist: she was deputy of the Supreme Council of the USSR, head of the Omsk Regional Committee of the protection of peace. She began to study diseases (opisthorchiasis, brucellosis, tuberculosis, endemic goiter) in prewar years, and after the end of the Great Patriotic War she continued her research in these fields, as well as in the field of pediatric cardiorheumatology.

MAZURIN Andrey
(6.10.1923–15.03.2001)

(chairman, 1987-1994, Moscow)

One of the founders of Soviet pediatric gastroenterology. With his direct assistance was founded the first specialized gastroenterology department, Moscow Gastroenterology and Endocrinology Centers. For many years he worked in the 2d Medical Institute (now — RNRMU named after N.I. Pirogov).

HEAD OF THE UNION OF PEDIATRICIANS OF RUSSIA

BARANOV Alexander
(born 12.07.1941)

(chairman of the Executive Committee since 1994)

The leading Russian scientist in the field of preventive and social pediatrics, pediatric gastroenterology, pediatric environmental pathology. Head of the Scientific Center of Children's Health. The social position of Alexander Baranov manifested itself the most clearly in 2004, when the western model of general practitioners, who had to take the responsibilities of pediatricians, was intended to be implemented in Russia. Alexander Baranov arranged a powerful public campaign against this innovation and thoughtless imitation of western models. This campaign convincingly proved that the Russian system of child health care is the most effective one under Russian conditions.
